

Cinema Club
PINEWOOD STUDIOS

Imagine a civilised private cinema, set in a world famous film studios, with just over 100 comfortable armchairs, a car park near the entrance, its own private bar and a clientele you will identify with. Sounds good, doesn't it?

It gets better – there are no adverts or trailers to sit through, a total absence of smelly fast food, and tickets are bookable well ahead.

In the early days of the Bond films, producer Cubby Broccoli persuaded Pinewood Studios to build him a preview cinema at the studios, so that he wouldn't be forever having to dash up to London to see the rushes. A privileged few now enjoy that cinematic treasure from Friday to Sunday for 50 weeks of the year. Wouldn't you like to join them?
